

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method for providing shipment information, including a receiver for receiving a request to obtain information regarding at least one of a shipment and a delivery, wherein the request is received from a requesting individual, a processor for processing the request to obtain information in conjunction with information regarding at least one of a shipment assignment, a shipment job, a delivery assignment, and a delivery job, and further wherein the processor generates a report in response to the request for information, and a transmitter for transmitting the report to a communication device associated with the requesting individual.